TRAX2 NanNing

China 1958, in recognition of the Zhuang people (the largest minority group in China) turned the then GuangXi Province into the Zhuang Autonomous Region of GuangXi.

NanNing been the provincial Capital since 1949, has since turned into the transport hub for the whole region, with rail connections to Vietnam (via PingXiang), central/north China (via Guilin – see Guilin map, YangShuo map, part of China Pizza Trail), west (via KunMing, see KunMing map, also DaLi map and LiJiang map too), south to HaiNan Island (via BeiHai) and the east to GuangZhou (GuangZhou map) and Hong Kong (HK map).

As with all other provincial capitals in China, NanNing has under gone and ongoing massive re-construction and today NanNing is a modern, fresh faced, subtropical southern Chinese city, in looks and structure a little bit like a smaller ShenZhen (see map of ShenZhen).
