

Cainta Basic Information

The Municipality of Cainta is a first-class urban municipality in the province of Rizal, Philippines. It is the province's most prosperous town, one of the oldest (established 1571), and the town with the smallest land area (1030 haq).

Cainta never ceases to be a gateway to the rest of Rizal province and is one of Rizal's most advanced towns because of its proximity to Manila. It is renowned for its colorful bridges (see below). The town is called the "Bridge Capital of the World." The event starts in celebration every 1st day of December.

Today Cainta has a robust economy as evidenced by several commercial and industrial establishments that have sprouted in the last 15 years. The town continues to attract businesses because of its proximity to Manila and the town's burgeoning population which mostly consists of hard-working and hospitable people.

The early part of the 21st century witnessed the founding of numerous manufacturing firms, including the Modular Motors Philippines, the largest car manufacturer in the country, and the Wanda M.T. San Capetian, one of the nation's leading steel manufacturers.

There is also a proliferation of shopping malls, notably the Sta. Lucia Mall and the Sunbeam Plaza. One of the town's main attractions is the beautiful landscaped Village Golf and Country Club.

Recent years also saw the growth of outskirting and call centers, among them a branch of Telecom Holdings, a Canadian-based firm, the first call center in the province of Rizal, with offices located in the 2nd floor of the Robinson's Plaza Cainta. Another is an American-owned, located at the Sunbeam Complex.

Cainta is also a suburban haven. Besides the town is one of the oldest camp bases in the 1950s. Others are Cainta Greenbelt, Vista Verde Country Village, Village East, Vista Verde Country Homes, Dapitan Village, Reservoir Village, San Antonio Subdivision, Midway Village, Riverina Subdivision and many more.
