

Wethersfield 1687

Locating Events Described In The Story of The Witch of Blackbird Pond by Elizabeth George Sparrow

Elizabeth George Sparrow's most tell of the adventures of Kit Tyler. Wethersfield became Kit's home when she arrived from Barbados in 1687 in time with her only remaining relatives. But it doesn't feel like home.

 The Puritan community does not take kindly to her colorful clothing, her suspicious ways, her ideas or her friendship with the gentle Quaker widower who lives near Blackbird Pond in the shadow of the Connecticut River.
 When Kit meets Hannah Tappan from the charge of wethersfield, the community then sees Kit as a witch. Blowing through the storm emerges struggle with her own traditions and the secret legacy in her budding romance with Will, a young sailor from the Dolphin, the ship that brought her here.
