

A map showing a light green background with white, irregular shapes representing land or snow. A network of thin, light blue lines represents a river system, with a main branch running vertically from the top left and several tributaries. A single red dot marks a location on one of the tributaries. To the right of this dot, the word "Koryazhma" is written in black text. A thin, wavy brown line runs diagonally across the bottom right corner of the map.
